

Design finalisation

The design finalisation for the $110.2 million Cowra Hospital has been completed with the latest plans now available. Feedback from staff and the community has been integral through the planning and design of the project, including the hospital's two-level design, as well as improved access for patients and visitors and onsite parking, new landscaped areas and enhanced access to district views from the hospital.

The design for the redevelopment has also been informed by engagement and consultation with the local Aboriginal community. As one of the outcomes, a cultural room will be located near the new main entrance, providing direct access to an adjoining outdoor space.
